SDNY Cautions Macintosh Users

Creating PDF documents with certain settings on Macintosh computers may result in PDF documents with internal errors that will prevent access to the PDF's once they are filed on the court's ECF system. If you use a Macintosh computer to prepare PDF documents for filing on ECF, please read the following instructions to avoid problems with your electronic filings.

Creating Documents Using a Macintosh Computer

When creating a document using MS Word on a Macintosh computer, at the step where you convert the document to PDF format, choose the option "Best for electronic distribution and accessibility." This will create a PDF document free from internal errors.

Editing Forms Using a Macintosh Computer

Please do not use the Safari web browser to download and electronically complete court forms from the court's website (<https://nysd.uscourts.gov/forms>) to produce a document for filing on ECF. Google Chrome has been tested and proven to create PDF's free from internal errors.

Questions may be directed to the court's Help Desk at (212)805-0800, or at helpdesk@nysd.uscourts.gov.

Effective immediately, the Court will remove malformed PDF documents from the ECF system and request the refileing of these documents in proper form.
